

About Kevin Abell

Kevin Abell has funded several partial college scholarships to go to deserving graduates of Baltimore County Alternative Education programs.

Abell is a direct descendant of the founders of The Baltimore Sun, and for the first decade of his career, he worked at the newspaper as a reporter and editor. “Since ink runs in my blood, I am a keen advocate of literacy,” Abell said. He has served on the Baltimore County Alternative Education Advisory Board since the late 1980’s and served as its chair twice.

“In the early years, Adult Basic Education programs and literacy programs came under the committee’s jurisdiction, so literacy and other efforts to keep children in school and moving up the educational ladder have been important to me. Since Baltimore has been wonderful to me and my family, it is with great pleasure that I am able to supply partial college scholarship grants to several deserving children from the Alternative Education programs each year for the next 5 years,” he continued.
