Performing Arts

Students have a variety of performance primes from which to choose. Depending on the school, program content and available resources will vary:

- Acting/Performance Theatre: Students will work in a variety of performance settings, including traditional and black box. Guest artists enhance student experiences and allow for individual talent development in drama, comedy, and musical theatre. Several performances throughout the year allow students to showcase their talents to a wide audience.
- Dance: Addresses aesthetic education, dance composition, Labanotation, repertory, choreography, creative expression, production, performance, criticism, and connections between dance and healthy living. Both programs emphasize ballet and modern dance, though others that may be included are jazz, tap, and musical theatre.
- Design and Production/Technical Theatre: Students in this program work behind the scenes working with sound, lighting, set design and construction, costume design, and theatre management.
- Instrumental Music: Students develop individual talents, as well as, ensemble performance, piano class, sight-reading, and music theory. Students are also prepared for conducting and solo performances in advanced settings and are exposed to composing and recording technology. (Instrumental Music does not include the study of guitar or piano.)
- Vocal Music: Students prepare for solo performance in opera, operetta, and musical theatre, as well as, ensemble performance. Course work includes vocal fundamentals and technique, sight reading, opera/musical theatre, acting, movement, history, and criticism.
