

ADMINISTRATION: Administrative Operations

School Organization: Teacher Attendance at PTA Meetings

Teacher attendance at PTA meetings provides a vital link in promoting the total educational program to the parents. It gives an opportunity for parents and teachers to explore jointly their responsibility to their children and to public education.

Teacher involvement and attendance at PTA meetings is essentially a local school matter and should be handled in the school. Teachers should be present when the nature of the program indicates a need for their participation. When professional and personal responsibilities conflict with attendance at PTA, the problem should be resolved with the local principal.

Teachers are encouraged to participate in the executive board activities of their PTA as teacher representatives and to carry a voice in the establishment of program and budget for local school PTA's.
